

The more post offices the democrats get, the louder ring their praises for Stevenson.

Ex-Governor Long, of Massachusetts says that Mr. Blaine will never again become a political leader.

The women of Boston are waking up, and 1843 have registered for assessment as voters, against 271 last year.

To-morrow the republicans of New York will hold a state convention to nominate a candidate for governor. A good nomination will carry the state; a bad one will not.

The medical department of the Western Reserve university at Cleveland, Ohio, has refused to admit women to the privileges of the school, after the announcement had been made that both sexes would be taught together. The lady applicants for admission seem less modest than men in hearing class lectures, and propose to bring suit against the faculty.

There is a general impression that the remains of General Grant will finally be taken to Washington for burial. Recently ex-Senator Chaffee made the statement public that "When congress meets steps will be taken to obtain Mrs. Grant's consent to the removal; I do not think that it will be hard to get, and as soon as she does consent the change will be made at once." If New York keeps on dallying with the proposed monument, it will not be difficult to obtain Mrs. Grant's consent.

It is a credit to the enterprising little city of Stoughton put on record such a vote as it has done on the high license question. The Courier of that place says that the special election resulted almost unanimously for the maximum sum of $500. There were only 254 votes cast, of which 19 were for $200, for $300, and the balance, 230, for $500, being a majority of 203 for the highest sum. The result of the last two elections has demonstrated the fact that Stoughton is an enterprising, wide awake city and also demonstrated to the outside world that the city is destined to grow and increase in material prosperity.

The Detroit base-ball management has secured Richardson, White, Rowe and Bruntz, of the Buffalo team, and next season the Detroit nine will be composed as follows, at the salaries named:

Bennett, catcher.....	$2,200
Baldwin, pitcher.....	2,400
Brother, first base.....	4,000
Day, second base.....	4,000
Richardson, short stop.....	4,000
White, third base.....	3,200
Wood, left field.....	1,600
Easton, center field.....	1,600
Thompson, right field.....	1,600
Westman, pitcher.....	1,200
Total.....	$30,700

The salaries of the management aggregate $5,250, making a total of $36,000. The nine will be the heaviest batting team in the country, and the managers expect to sweep the boards with it, any other year.

The New York World, the administrative organ of that city, gives George William Curtis and other civil service reformers some instructive reading in the following paragraph touching upon the removal of Captain Bacon as weigher in Brooklyn, and the appointment of Sterling in his place:

It is the conviction of many shrewd political observers that Sterling was promised at the Chicago convention that he would be taken care of for standing by Cleveland. Efforts were made to change him, but he stood firm. The position to which he had been appointed is his share of the spoils. A German Kane is declared, will be made United States marshal for like services. Viewed in any light, the appointment appears to have been made purely for political reasons.

An effort will be made by some civil service reformers to have Captain Bacon reinstated, and if the president refuses to see that it is done, then the independent republicans will no longer give the administration its confidence. As the Brooklyn weigher pays $300,000 annually for salaries, Dan Manning will not let go the grip on that office. It is the spoils he is after.

A dispatch from Ohio makes the claim that the saloon men of that state will not give the democratic ticket its solid support. In explanation the dispatch says that there are many of the saloon men who see the evils that have come from their opposition to the Scott law and their error in not accepting it as a compromise, and thus handing off prohibition. The vote of $60,000 for a prohibition amendment two years ago stands as a constant menace to their business, and they are beginning to see that further arrogances on their part will hasten the thing they would most avoid. The bitter fight on the Scott law undoubtedly caused the prohibition amendment vote to be much larger than it would otherwise have been. Many of the leading saloon men in Cleveland and elsewhere are therefore agreeing to support the republican candidates for the legislature on the understanding that the principle of the Scott law will be adhered to in case the general assembly is republican, and that no prohibition amendment will again be submitted by republican votes. The saloon men also feel that the democrats have not done as they agreed. So strong is their feeling on this point that the liquor association that was formed in Cleveland for the express purpose of aiding the democrats and that has greatly aided them during the last two years, has practically gone to pieces, and enough of the members cannot be got together for the transaction of business.

A MUGWUMP IN DIRE DISTRESS.

An astonishing change has come over the spirit of the dreams of several of the mugwump newspapers in the east. They were reveling in perfect bliss after the election last fall, because Grover Cleveland, the man who could not commit a political sin, was elected. They told the story day after day that his administration would mean reform; that civil service would mount the dome of the capitol, and eagle-like, spread its wings over every state and territory in the Union; that bad men would not get in office; that parties would have nothing to do with the Cleveland administration whose coming would be as propitious to this country as the coming of the star of the east to Palestine in olden times; and that there would be no political bosses and no machine men about the New York custom house.

But craps is hanging on the sanctum doors of some of the mugwump newspapers, especially of the New York Evening Post, which was the loudest mugwump paper in all New York last fall. It is known everywhere that Mr. Cleveland has made some terrible blunders of late. Some of his appointments have severely fractured the faith of the independents, and especially in this case with the removal of Captain George N. Bacon, as weigher for the Brooklyn department of the New York custom house. Bacon was one of the best officers that ever filled that important position. Among all the office holders in New York there was not one more exalted in character than he, or more efficient in the discharge of his official duties, yet he had to go to make room for a ward politician in Brooklyn. When this was done, the Evening Post had its political faith completely shipwrecked, and this is the way it gave vent to its wounded feelings:

The change in the New York custom house, on which we commented yesterday, following close on a visit of Messrs. Hadden and Beattie to Washington, are making many people believe that though the president is not interfering in the state canvass himself, he is allowing the custom house to be used by local politicians to whatever extent they may deem necessary. We do not ourselves believe that these suspicions are well founded. We will think that when the president's attention is called to what is going on at the custom house he will take measures to check it. In fact, he can hardly avoid doing so without parting company, in the very first year of his administration, with a large body of his foremost and most faithful supporters.

The foregoing paragraph would give even a democrat a plain understanding as to what the Post meant; and any one, no matter how dull, would see that the great mugwump paper was getting mad about something.

Then in the very same issue of the Post, it lets the cat out of the bag in this blunt fashion:

It is no secret that the performance is looked on by political observers here as part of an agreement between Hubert O. Thompson and McLaughlin, the Brooklyn boss. We have been unable as yet to learn what counterbalancing Secretary Lansing put out. He refused yesterday all explanation to the newspapers. But some explanation to somebody he will have to make. This is not a matter in which he can wrap himself in his dignity and refuse to answer questions. The Post must be commended for one thing; it is not merely-mouthed about expressing an opinion of Mr. Manning, Cleveland's secretary of the treasury—the prince of political bosses in New York politics. But, having on a good supply of war-paint, the Post starts out in another direction, and in its work of showing up the administration it has the commendable courage to say this much:

The public ought to know before the election, and congress ought to know before it meets, who the real collector is, and who "owns" Beattie. If it be Mr. Beattie, O. Thompson, the friends of reform, ought to know it because if this gentleman be the kind of person the administration thinks fit to manage an office like the New York custom house, Mr. Cleveland is not the man for whom they voted. There was in that case, somewhere at the last election a great and most unfortunate mistake.

This is a sad condition of mind for the Evening Post to be in. It is the condition of a whipped crew. There is no place in the present administration where the Post can go to find peace of mind. Everything is going wrong. Its faith in the supreme goodness of this administration has received a compound fracture. Its hindsight is poking fun at its foresight. The Post has found after some bitter experience that Mr. Cleveland is no better than his party. It is hoped that he would control the bourbon element in his party, put all the bosses on the shelf, smash all the machines, and recreate the party and make it one of unflinching reform.

It was only a few weeks ago that the Post had on occasion to say something of the supervisory of New York, and these were its words: "Mr. Beattie, the new surveyor, is well-known, and has precisely the qualifications necessary to make him a valuable officer." But when Mr. Beattie had been tried, the Post found what his qualifications were, and it frankly tells its readers about them: "Beattie is one of the smart, brassy youths whom New York politics is constantly bringing to the surface, who are always ready to do dirty work from which older and more conspicuous hands shrink."

This is the condition of things in the mugwump mind. The feeling of the Post is largely the feeling of the New York Times, the Springfield Republican and other independent papers which gave Cleveland their support. They have been deceived—grossly deceived—because all the upstart politicians of the democratic party are running the administration, and it seems, so far as the New York custom house is concerned, that the president is dealing out the spoils of that office to the bosses of the party.

A CHANGE IN THE MAP.

ANOTHER "DEAL" GOING ON IN EUROPEAN REAL ESTATE.

Roumelia, Being Thereunto Inherited by Russia and Others, Achieves a Bloodless Revolution in Defense of the Berlin Treaty—What Next?

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The troubles in Eastern Roumelia arising out of the exactions of the Turkish government have at last culminated in a rebellion, which has not yet proved bloodless, but the end of which is not yet. The debt band of M. de Giers, the shrewd Russian diplomat, is believed to have prepared the programme for the rising, and it is thought it will pass unopposed by the signatory powers to the treaty of Berlin. The particulars of the rising, as gleaned from dispatches from Philippopolis, the capital of eastern Roumelia, are as follows: The late governor, M. de Giers, was executed a plan was laid out for the rising, which was to be carried out through without disorder or bloodshed. There was a simultaneous uprising, in which practically the entire population participated, except the government officials, the governor having fled. The insurgents, having secured a united front with Bulgaria, proclaimed, and a provisional government established, immediately after which the militia were sworn in, taking the oath of allegiance to the emperor of Bulgaria. The insurgents, acting under the orders of the strategic points on the Turkish frontier, blew up all the bridges which would have been used for advancing from Turkey to the relief of the deposed government, and destroyed the telegraph wires leading into Turkey. From Sophia it is learned that the Bulgarian army has been successful in driving the Turkish forces from the frontier. Prince Alexander has succeeded to Philippopolis, and has appointed M. Strassky as commissary. M. Strassky is now president of the Roumelian provincial government. There is no reason to suppose that the foreign residents at Philippopolis or their property.

PHILIPPOPOLES, Sept. 21.—Prince Alexander has issued a proclamation announcing that in accordance with the wishes of the Roumelian people he is assuming sovereignty over the two provinces of North and South Bulgaria. Measures will be taken to preserve peace, and all who oppose the new government will be severely punished. The prince expresses the hope that the people will do the utmost to support his government. The proclamation, which was received here by telegraph, was read publicly, and the greatest enthusiasm. Prince Alexander is expected here shortly. The population is now in a state of great excitement. The deposed governor, Gabriel Pasha, is under guard. He is well treated, in accordance with his rank.

The Turkish and Greek portions of the Roumelian territory have been divided into two provinces, and the government has taken measures for their defense, and have offered their services in resisting a Turkish invasion.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 21.—A council of ministers was held Saturday, presided over by the sultan, at which it was decided to send a force to the provinces of North and South Bulgaria. Orders have been issued to collect an army corps at Adrianople.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 21.—It is hoped in current circles here that the signatory powers of the Berlin treaty will settle the Roumelian troubles amicably, keeping in sight the just grievances of the people. Austria, it is thought, will probably abstain from Herzegovina.

(The establishment of eastern Roumelia as a province of the Berlin treaty of 1878. The Roumelian government was given an autonomous government, but was to continue a portion of the Turkish empire, with a governor appointed by the sultan, subject to the approval of the powers represented at the Berlin congress.)

LATEST FROM BOSTON'S PET.

An Offer for a Triple Fight—"Johnny, Bill Up the Bow!"

New York, Sept. 21.—John Sullivan left the city Sunday afternoon on the 5 o'clock Pennsylvania railroad train for Baltimore, Md., where he is to open with Lester & Allen's variety company in an ancient gladiator posing show. He is to receive $700 per week. He is bound by an iron-clad contract with them, and cannot appear in any other exhibition without his managers' consent. He says he is still the champion, and will fight Ryan and Burke and McCuttry with bare knuckles one after another in a room with two spectators, each to pay $100, and if he does not knock them out they can divide up the stakes and door receipts. He wound up his last night here with a grand drunk, and spent about $1,000 for wine.

Appearing to the Rubber Workers.

Worcester, R.I., Sept. 21.—Mr. McKeon made another powerful appeal to the rubber workers Sunday to return to work on the terms asked by themselves, which are the conceding of prices paid in the Malden Rubber works. He read a list of the prices, and said all strikers would be taken back, including those implicated in overt acts. He advised the appointment of a committee to see President Harnagan, whom all would be made right. He condemned boycotting as unwise and unjust.

Anarchist Meet in Paris.

FIFTY THOUSAND FOR A TEAM.

Westmont and Lorraine Sold to Frank Siddalls—Sporting Summary.

New York, Sept. 21.—J. M. Hill sold his last racing team, Westmont and Lorraine, Sunday evening to Frank Siddalls for $50,000. Mr. Siddalls has long wanted to buy the team, but Hill has persistently refused to sell. The two gentlemen met in a downtown restaurant, and Siddalls said to Hill in a bantering manner: "Are you ready to make a price on these reeliners of yours?" "Not today," was the quiet response. "I dare you to name a figure," said Mr. Siddalls.

"I dare you," replied Mr. Hill, "I'll name you a price, but I expect you will fail when I nominate. It is $50,000."

Mr. Siddalls at once drew from the breast-pocket of his coat a check-book, and, supplying quickly to the clerk, filled out a check for $50,000, and passed it over to Hill with the remark: "The steers are mine."

New York, Sept. 21.—In the great two mile race at Coney Island Saturday, Woodford, a Canadian, and Burnside, a New York, were the only ones who started. The fourth ward aldermen will be compelled to employ an engineer to dispose of the surface water at the corner of River and Pleasant streets. The removing of the "Hole Chapel" to the vacant lot at that corner and the building of a basement wall, cuts off the flow of water and there is now no outlet from the street to the river. The puddle of water on that corner is not a very good thing for a city to boast of at this time.

Denniston, the dealer in fancy and staple groceries and fruits, 10 West Milwaukee street, shipped a large order of his choice goods to a gentleman in Nashville, Tennessee, to-day, evidence that his retail trade extends over a wide range of country. Deloit Froe Press: "The Rock county fair closed on Friday the most successful season in its history, financially considered. Thursday was marked with a greater attendance than ever before. We cannot speak from a personal knowledge of the exhibits, but understand there were a very large number of entries, many of them of superior merit. The success of the fair was due to two causes, viz: The energy and perseverance of that prince of good fellows, the indefatigable Captain W. T. Vankirk, and the good weather. We congratulate the association upon the possession of these two all-important elements of success, especially during fair week."

Yesterday afternoon little Hiram Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bennett, of the fourth ward, met with a severe accident and one which will keep him in bed for some time. The family were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Altona Sweeney, on Terrace street, and while little Hiram was running about the house he ran against Mrs. Stokney. She was then carrying a kettle of boiling water across the room and knob of the contents were spilled on the child. The stream struck just above the right knee and from there down the flesh was scalded so that it came off in flakes when the clothing was removed. A doctor was called immediately, and though during the night no pain was very severe to-day the little fellow is resting much easier.

This morning at ten o'clock the board of directors of the Rock County Agricultural society held a meeting in E. B. Halms' office to arrange for the payment of premiums. It was decided unanimously to pay all premiums in full and the auditing committee will immediately begin to examine the books. The fair this year has been unusually successful, the proceeds from tickets being as follows: Wednesday, $4,000; Thursday, $1,000; Friday, $4,000. The proceeds from the grand stand were $271.70, so that the sum total will be $29,480.50. This does not include the receipt from sale of privileges or from entry money.

Little Morris Holleran met yesterday a very severe and painful mishap yesterday afternoon. He was out riding with his father, Mr. Morris Holleran, of Hickory street, second ward, and while passing through the "stone quarry" near Chapin's, the horses took fright, throwing the occupants of the wagon to the ground with considerable force. Little Morris falling on his face, receiving a severe cut on the right cheek—cutting clear through into the mouth. His older brother and father escaped with slight bruises. The runaway horses were captured before doing any damage. Little Morris Holleran was brought to his home and Dr. S. S. Judd attended to his wounds.

An event of importance, at least to the parties immediately concerned, occurred in Duluth, Minnesota, on Monday, September 14th, 1885, it being the marriage, at the residence of the groom's father, of Mr. Lawrence P. Johnson, of Duluth, and Miss Clara M. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson of this city. The wedding was a quiet one, only relatives being present. On Wednesday, the parents of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, on their return from a trip to St. Paul, tendered the young couple a brilliant reception, and their home was the scene of a gathering of many friends, who wished the newly married ones a bright and happy future, which sentiment is endorsed most heartily by the many Janesville friends, to whom the bride is well known. The groom is one of Duluth's substantial young business men, and the young couple commenced housekeeping at that city immediately.

Orders by mail, telegram or telephone will receive prompt attention.

On Saturday afternoon Farley Murphy, with blood in his eye, entered the second-hand store of Sanborn & Caniff, on Main street, and wanted to examine some revolvers. Mr. L. Caniff, who happened to be on duty at the time, opened the show case and handed out several revolvers, one of which had been used at the theatre during the week firing blank cartridges, one of which, unbeknown to the proprietors, had been left in the chamber unexploded. If there is any one thing more than another which Mr. Caniff prides himself on, it is in convincing his customers that all articles sold at his establishment are just as represented, and to convince Farley that the assortment of revolvers were all right, he commenced to "snap" them, being rather careless where he pointed. After snapping several, he picked up the one used in the theatre, not suspecting a loaded cartridge was in it, and pointed directly at Farley. Farley looked at the bright muzzle to see and be convinced that all was in order. Down snapped the hammer, and with the explosion of the blank cartridge down went Farley, declaring he was killed, sure, Caniff, believing he had actually shot his customer, partly lost his self control, and for a moment lost himself in the excitement which followed. Others of the firm rallied at the show case Farley was examined, when it was found that he was not even wounded in the least, and that he was all right. The blood left the corner of Farley's eye (as if by magic), and he left the store with the conclusion that he did not want to purchase a revolver. Orders were given for the second hand store to place no more fire arms in the show case until the "blanks" had been withdrawn.

Dr. L. D. Judd, of Philadelphia, who has been in this city for the past two weeks, visiting his mother, Mrs. Harriet J. Judd, of Oak Lawn, started for his Philadelphia home this afternoon, in order to be present at the funeral of his uncle, the late Samuel L. Wagon.

Death of Sailor Dick.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Richard Brooks, residing on Eastern avenue, third ward, received a telegram from Chicago, stating that her husband, familiarly known as "Sailor Dick," was dangerously ill, and summoning her to Chicago at once. About the same time Mrs. Spencer Alexander received a dispatch stating that Mr. Brooks was dead.

The fact that Mr. Brooks was in this city last Tuesday, apparently in good health, and that he left that evening for Chicago, for the purpose of joining a circus as a "boss" carman, led to many rumors which were scattered upon the streets from month to month. One of these rumors stated that "Sailor Dick" had been shot, and another that he had been murdered. The Chicago evening papers of Saturday were eagerly searched but nothing found relating to his case, and a diligent search in the Sunday papers revealed nothing concerning his death.

Last evening Messrs. Michael McCue and Thomas Donnelly went to Chicago for the purpose of bringing the remains home, and this morning they telegraphed that Mr. Brooks died a natural death, and that they would be home with the remains on the 8:45 train from Chicago this evening.

For a long time Mr. Brooks had been in the employ of the Burr Robbins show company, the past season as master of transportation. He left Mr. Robbins' some two or three weeks ago while showing at Marshalltown, Iowa, coming home, afterwards engaging with a company at Chicago, to travel in the south during the winter, as the "boss" carman. Mr. Brooks had made his home in Janesville for a number of years, and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his sudden taking away.

Shortly after midnight Saturday morning the back portion was discovered to be in flames, and speedily extinguished. At about the same hour Sunday morning the main building was fired. THE FIRST AT WASHINGTON.

Conservation of a Roman Catholic Bishop—Impressive Ceremonies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The Rev. Father John J. Sullivan, pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church of this city, was Sunday consecrated bishop of Mobile, Ala. The ceremonies, attending the consecration, which were of an imposing and impressive character, were held at St. Peter's church, the most distinguished assembly of Roman Catholic clergy and laity that ever gathered together here. The church was filled to its capacity, and the people who came to witness the consecration numbered fully 3,000 people assembled around the church during the services which lasted three and one-half hours.

The ceremonies began by a procession which moved around the church, starting at the main door and proceeding by way of the right aisle to the sanctuary. Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore; Bishop Keane, of Richmond, Va.; Kain, of Wheeling, W. Va.; and Norphon, of Charleston, S. C., were present. The venerable archbishop officiated as consecrator. At the conclusion of the ceremonies Bishop Sullivan was invested with the mitre, the bishop's hat was placed on his head and the consecrator uttered the words of consecration of the first Roman Catholic bishop that ever took place in Washington were concluded. The consecration sermon was preached by Bishop Kain.

"Deliberate" the Savants.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The annual meeting of the British association closed Thursday, and was probably the most prosaic record. At the dinner on Thursday the speaker was the venerable archbishop of Canterbury, who presided over one of the most important proceedings in a novel manner. He procured a bean, stuck small, flowers in it for hops, and with two small lilies made a cross. He then placed on a plate covered with fine glass and passed around the table for inspection, labeled "A Newly Discovered Insect." Every one of the men of science were delighted, and two practical sections were discussed the species of the new bug, to the great amusement of those in the secret. Finally the joke leaked out, and amid roars of laughter the journalists gave his own theories concerning the phlogiston vulgaris.

The Hotel Bill of Fare.

(Philadelphia Times.) Amid all the force competition of summer resorts, it is strange that no hotel-keeper has yet arisen with genius or courage sufficient to make a new departure in the bill of fare. The effort of all these estimable men is to make a longer list of possible list of dinner dishes. And this effort of their part is constantly the same—to find something in the list that they care to eat. After many experiments, more or less disastrous—or, in the case of old stagers, without taking any new risks—they commonly settle down upon a few of the plainest items that the menu offers. The rest remains untouched.

So universal is this experience of the utility of the bill of fare that one can not but marvel to find it year after year unchanged. And yet the same old bill of fare is presented at every hotel throughout the winter! Nobody cares to sample all these things, and most of them would never be sampled more than once by the same guest. And yet they must occupy a great deal of attention from the cooks, which might be concentrated with much better effect upon the few things that
